TRENTON'S BIG DAY. BROOK

Battle Monument Unveiled With Brilliant Ceremonies.

The Governors of Seven States Take Part.

The exercises at the unveiling of the Trenton battle monument began at 12 o'clock. They will not cease until late to-night.

Distinguished guesis began to arrive last night, when Gov. Morris, of Chanceticut, his staff and a company of his foot guards put in an appearance. This morning the foot guards were respiendent in their red and white Continental uniforms. The eyes of everybody were upon them.

The figures mentioned do not by any means represent all those who purpose going. The railroad officials want to be conservative, but they are alive to the fact that hundreds who have not similated their intention of going will appear at the last moment.

The committee having charge of the Manhattan Day celebration closed up its office in the City Hall yesterday, thoroughly satisfied with its work. Lots of people thought the office would be open this morning. As early as 9 o'clock a great crowd began to gather about the corridors. They found the "Governor's" room locked, however, and then the liveliest kind of hurrying and scurrying followed. They all wanted badges, tickets and instruction.

From that moment on all the railroad offices were besieged and clerks had a busy time of it.

Respiendent in their uniforms the officers and members of the Old Guard leave by the West Shore Railroad at 8.45 P. M.
